Responsorial Psalm	Blessed is everyone who fears the Lord
Reading II	1 Thessalonians 5.1-6

	Wealth can lead to happiness and to generosity, if we remain masters of money rather than letting money—or its equivalents like property—master us. Money can also engender anxiety and will never of itself, make us happy. Jesus was one who founded his happiness on his relationship with God and on the fulfillment of his mission in life. We can find a true happiness when our lives are guided towards god and live in the values of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

‡ “BISHOPS PASS BUT COMMUNITIES KEEP MOVING FORWARD”

(This is part 3 of the Installation of a Bishop series)

“A bishop is a man who passes in a community in motion. I have served this Church as a pastor. I am now retired. Bishops pass but God’s people keeps moving forward”. That was one of the messages in Most Rev. Roger Ébacher’s homily for his Thanksgiving Mass last Tuesday November 1st. On All Saints’ Day, some 700 persons attended the celebration, during which our Archbishop Emeritus and the diocesan community express their blessings for the 23 years spent together.

He encouraged us to stay rooted in the essence of our faith during the period of change brought by his retirement: “Today, we rejoice together for having received the Holy Spirit, that gift of God through which he made us his cherished children. That is our true identity. That is our eternal destiny. According to his plan of mercy and tenderness, God wants salvation for the whole humankind. He expects us to help them discover or sense Jesus’ beauty, the Father’s goodness and the Holy Spirit’s efficiency. This is our mission and it should be accomplished through the quality of our lives, through an active faith and a strong well-anchored hope as well as the kind of love that makes us work hard for others, especially the frail, the wounded, and those impoverished through and by life.”

Most Rev. Ébacher said he benefited from the continuous collaboration of his fellow priests, of members of religious orders, of pastoral agents, and of us all: "I also received thousands of signs of your support. I thank you from the bottom of my heart." He concluded with an invitation to welcome our new pastor and, with him, to look to the future with hope and boldness.

The bishops of the three suffragan dioceses, Most Rev. Terrence Prendergat and the Archdiocese priests concelebrated. The celebration ended with words of blessings from the Ottawa Archbishop, from Father Rodhain Kasuba Malu, representing the clergy, from Sr. Denise Blouin. and Lucie Bacon, Pastoral Agents, from Mr. Tom Miles, on behalf of the Anglophone community, and from Mr. Pierre-Paul Périard, on behalf of the Fabriques.

Among other things, Most Rev. Prendergast mentioned that Most Rev. Ébacher has published De la souffrance à la l'espérance, the first Catholic guidelines in the world on the prevention and fight of sexual abuses. Father Kasuba Malu highlighted Mgr Ébacher's pastoral and theological concerns.

THANKS FOR THE SPLENDID CELEBRATION ON NOVEMBER 1ST

The November 1st Thanksgiving celebration held at the Cathedral touched my heart very deeply. I was glad to see such a large assembly representing various aspects of the life of the Diocese. Thanks to all who attended and to all who would have liked to attend but could not. Many generous gifts were left to my attention. While it is impossible to thank everybody individually I hope these words can be published in parish bulletins, I want to thank all the generous donors. I also wish to express my gratitude to all the communities which demonstrated their attachment to the Diocese and to me personally. I received many vibrant and well-expressed wishes on many beautiful cards. Many people encouraged me to use those gifts to rest, to travel or to use in other ways. Once I have retired, I will think of you with gratitude when I will either remember this particular celebration or when I make use of your gifts to pursue a life of joy and hope as I continue to spread the Gospel.

Diocesan Administrator

NEXT WEEKS SERVICES

HELP TO COOL THE EARTH

Last week's bulletin included a pamphlet with information about how Development and Peace partners in Asia, Africa and Latin America help groups of small-scale farmers practise sustainable farming, in order to help cool down the Earth's rising global temperatures and reduce the effects of climate change. Parishioners were also invited to view a short video after mass on the effects of climate change, largely the result of excessive greenhouse gases caused by human activity. Afterwards, solidarity action cards will be distributed.

Development and Peace is asking us to sign a message of solidarity for small-scale farmers. This message of solidarity will be sent to Development and Peace partners who are working with organized groups of small-scale farmers in the Global South. It will help to strengthen their advocacy and education work with their governments and their communities.

Take some cards home with you along with more detailed information on the campaign and show these to your children and grandchildren – climate change is becoming a very important topic in their lives. Signed cards can be deposited with the weekly collections. You can also find more information on the website at: www.devp.org
