Fr. Albanus' Reflections on the Sunday Liturgy

Messiahship and Discipleship

Today's liturgy calls us to reflect on messiahship and discipleship. Christians are called to live their lives in a different way from others around them. Christian discipleship demands honesty, the willingness to suffer ("take up your cross"), generosity ("to offer our bodies as a living sacrifice to God"), and readiness to follow Jesus by obeying his commandment of love. In the first reading, we see the Prophet Jeremiah, the prototype of the Suffering Christ.

The Prophet lives at a period of worsening political and religious situation under King Jehoiakim. There are unhealthy alliances, injustice, misappropriation of resources as well as religious externalism and concomitant lack of conversion of hearts and respect for the law of God. God therefore calls Jeremiah to warn the people. His words not only fall on deaf ears, but also arouse persecution against him. Due to his suffering, the prophet accuses God of tricking him and offers us a powerful description of someone suffering for obedience to his conscience. He feels abandoned by God and alone, an object of scorn and violence. In despair, he threatens to not speak in the name of God any more. Jeremiah is an archetype of those who carry out special mission in God's name. Like Jeremiah, God does not promise us an easy life without sufferings and persecutions. But we need to be steadfast knowing that with God we will emerge victorious like Christ.

In the second reading, Paul advises the Christians not to model themselves on the behaviour of the world around them. Christians must rather adopt an attitude of sacrifice in the worship of God. He urges "Offer your bodies as a living sacrifice" to God and "discern what is the will of God, what is good and pleasing and perfect" and do it even if it is not pleasing to human taste. In today's Gospel, Jesus explains what Messiahship and discipleship really mean. He prepares his disciples for His approaching ordeal in Jerusalem which is necessary because it is according to the will of God made known through prophecies. Like Jeremiah, Jesus has to face the stark truth that His relationship with His Father involves personal anguish and suffering and rejection and will lead eventual death.

Peter is frankly appalled by Jesus' statements and cannot accept the idea that the Messiah will be humiliated as the rabbis have taught the opposite. Having made a beautiful declaration that Jesus is the Christ, a title associated with victory and glory, Peter now denies that Jesus must suffer. He wants to remove suffering from the agenda. Jesus rebukes him, "Get behind me, Satan." This is to nullify the temptation to Him to shrink from the work for which He had come. To really understand Jesus means to understand the cross. Peter here portrays himself in the light of a tempter; his ambition and desires belong to the realm of Satan, according to Jesus. Peter is moving in the direction exactly opposite to the plan of God; his proposal is according to the logic of man. This is in contrast to his role in last Sunday's Gospel. While in the Gospel of last Sunday Peter as one inspired by the Father accepts His plan of salvation by professing his faith in Jesus and so becomes a living stone of the Church, in today's Gospel he keeps thinking according to the logic of man and harbor thoughts of overpowering the enemies and similar ways of establishing God's kingdom and becomes a stone that is an obstacle in the path. The Christ of Peter's dream is all glory and prestige, untouched by vulnerable humanity.

Jesus therefore gives the conditions for those who want to follow Him. They must choose the way of the cross and self-immolation. To follow Him, one must give up personal ambition and selfishness and be aware of the needs of our brothers and sisters. The disciples must carry the cross with Jesus; that is, they must always follow the same path as Jesus did, live His ideals and accept being persecuted or ignored in order to remain faithful to the Gospel. To find life, we must have the courage to do as Jesus did: lose it for our brothers and sisters. This life is transient. The only thing a person takes with him/her at the end of life is the love s/he was able to give.

HISTORY OF OLV

Following the departure of Father Donald Jeffrey in 1993, our parish would be led by a Pastoral team: Father Don MacLellan, Father Bob Smith, Sister Sheila and Sister Regina.

This team believed that parishioners should be involved in their parish. Various faith sessions were held in the evenings, with particular emphasis on better understanding our religion. A youth choir was formed. One memorable occasion was a children's Mass, which included puppets during the sermon!

Father Don was very knowledgeable when it came to computers and the OLV/St. Malachy parish office entered the electronic age with its first computer. Because of serious health challenges, Father Don was forced to leave in 1995.

The team was replaced by Father Lomer J. Rooney. Many will remember Father Lomer as a great speaker. His sermons were given in the center aisle of the church and usually contained a few jokes. Unfortunately, Father Lomer had to leave us that same year because of poor health.

Our Parish was to be without a permanent Pastor for the next two years. Priests, who were taking courses at St. Paul University, said Masses on the weekends. During this period, we were very fortunate to have two local priests, Father Yvan Robitaille and Father Andre Fortin, who rearranged their schedules on many occasions so that they could help us by presiding at funerals.
